The Campbell Law Alumni Association, officially organized at Homecoming last October, is planning its first major event for this spring. The site is the Myrtle Beach Howard Johnson's. The program includes continuing legal education, fun, and fellowship.

By now you should have already received a letter from John Tyson ('79), President of the Law Alumni Association, spelling out the particulars of this weekend extravaganza:

ALUMNI BREAKFAST HELD AT BAR MEETING

On Saturday, January 15, the Campbell Law Alumni Association sponsored a breakfast as part of the mid-year meeting of the North Carolina Bar Association. A small, but loyal, group turned out for the 7:30 a.m. affair.

Acting Dean Jenkins shared with the group information about what's going on at the School of Law. Other faculty members and alumni who were present had the opportunity to talk about old and new times.

ADMISSIONS OUTLOOK GOOD

Tom Lanier, Director of Admissions, reports that the number of applications for the 1983-84 academic year is ahead of last year's all-time record.

"All of us at Campbell University School of Law appreciate the diligent efforts of our best recruiters--our alumni," says Tom.

LAW SEMINAR AT WEYMOUTH CENTER

The Kenelm Foundation, Campbell University, and Campbell University School of Law sponsored a two-day law seminar at the Weymouth Center in Southern Pines on Friday and Saturday, January 21-22.

The seminar was entitled "Definitions: Dead or Deadly" and featured Dr. J. Stanley McQuade, Lynch Professor of Law, as the principal speaker.

The Friday session was for Campbell law students only. Seven students were invited to participate in the overnight seminar: Lynn Calder (Greenville, NC), Chris Clapsaddle (Sylva, NC), John Coble (High Point, NC), Amy Gillen (Wilmington, NC), Sharon Hartman (Winston-Salem, NC), David Nanney (Gastonia, NC), and Drew Vanore (Raleigh, NC).

The Saturday morning session was open to the public. Members of the bar of Moore County and surrounding counties were specially invited.

The Kenelm Foundation of Collinwood, New Jersey, and its director, Robert Drummond of Carthage, together with Campbell University, hold three seminars at the Weymouth Center annually. The seminars focus on the subjects of North Carolina taxation, politics, and law.
In April of 1979 during my second year at Campbell Law School I was at R.D.U. Airport to see my wife, Jenny, off to New York on a business trip. Her flight was delayed so I sat down to wait with her. As is my custom in airports, I began noticing the other passengers who were waiting with us. There were the usual businessmen, the one mother with a screaming child (that always makes you wish you’d gone first class), etc. Immediately to my right was a graying, dignified man who probably would not have attracted my attention at all except he was reading a legal brief. Since timidity is not one of my virtues, I commented, "You must be a lawyer."

"No, a judge."

"Oh, of what court?" I questioned. "The Supreme Court," was the polite reply.

"Of North Carolina?" I continued, trying to recall some names of our esteemed judges and very excited to be meeting one of them.

"No, the U.S. Supreme Court," he answered. "I am Justice Potter Stewart."

Speechless and fighting the urge to ask for his autograph, I grabbed my wife's arm (she swears the marks are still there), and calmly (?) introduced her to Justice Stewart. Composure regained, we conversed with this great man for about a half hour. He was returning to D.C. after having served as judge at Duke's Moot Court.

When the flight arrived, I watched my wife and Justice Stewart board the plane. He boarded first class, and according to Jenny, returned to his legal brief. Jenny headed to New York wondering if the rest of her trip would prove as eventful as the delay in the airport.

ED.: It is hoped that contributed articles of this nature will become a periodic—if not a regular—feature of the Law Alumni Newsletter. Any alumni interested are invited to submit material for consideration.

Would you believe that all fall semester grades were posted by January 18?
DR. JOHN BRODERICK participated in the Law Professor Workshop conducted by the American Bar Association Standing Committee on Law and National Security and the International Law Section entitled: "The New International Economic Order: Development or Dependence?" at St. Louis University School of Law on December 10-11, 1982. Also, "The Chief" has been appointed to the Labor & Employment Law Section's Continuing Legal Education Committee of the North Carolina Bar Association.

Former Adjunct Professor A. P. CARLTON, JR. has joined the firm of Sanford, Adams, McCullough & Beard. Professor Carlton formerly was Secretary & General Counsel of Bancshares of North Carolina, Inc. and Bank of North Carolina, N.A.

Professor PATRICK K. HETRICK has had his second book in a year published. Prentice-Hall, Inc. has just published the second edition of North Carolina Real Estate For Brokers and Salesmen. Written under the auspices of the North Carolina Real Estate Licensing Board, the second edition is a complete revision and update of an earlier "classic" written by the late Professor James A. Webster, Jr. of Wake Forest University Law School. Well over 500 pages in length, the book is regarded as a "must" for all real estate licensees and every person studying for the North Carolina real estate licensing examination.

Former Professor LEE HOLLEY has written a book on Preparation of Medical Cases for Settlement and Trial. Published by The Harrison Company, Professor Holley's book is extensively cross-referenced to Dr. J. Stanley McQuade's medical series.

Adjunct Professor ROBERT MORGAN was appointed Harnett County Attorney on December 6, 1982 by the County Board of Commissioners. Professor Morgan will handle all the county's legal activities, with the exception of work generated by the tax and social services departments.

Professor RICHARD RODGERS has been appointed to the Editorial Board of Legal Economics, a bi-monthly journal published by the Section of Legal Economics of the American Bar Association.

TWO ADJUNCT FACULTY NOW JUDGES

On Tuesday, December 14, 1982, A. THOMAS SMALL was sworn in as a bankruptcy judge for the Eastern District of North Carolina. Judge Small formerly had been Vice President and Associate General Counsel of First Union Corporation specializing in problem loans, commercial workouts, and bankruptcy. He has written on the new Bankruptcy Code, is a consultant to the National Coalition for Bankruptcy Reform, has served as Program Chairman for North Carolina Bar Association seminars dealing with the new Code, and is author of ABA's Operational Guide to Consumer Bankruptcy.

On Monday, January 3, 1983, SIDNEY S. EAGLES, JR. was sworn in as a Judge of the North Carolina Court of Appeals. Judge Eagles was elected in 1982 following a two-primary contest. Before ascending to the bench, he was a partner in the Raleigh law firm of Eagles, Hafer & Hall.

FACULTY TEACHING WORKSHOP

At the recommendation of the Educational Programs Committee, the law faculty has established a peer review system. Each faculty member will video-tape some of his or her classes. A group of three or four faculty will then get together and review one another's tapes and discuss the tapes with the faculty member concerned.

This system is designed with the recognition that although the law faculty is comprised of high quality classroom teachers, the members recognize that there is need for improvement and that they should strive for excellence in the classroom. One practical way to become better is for the faculty to see themselves as students see them, in their actual teaching capacities. In addition, by viewing themselves in the company of a small group of their colleagues and exchanging with that group ideas and constructive criticism, they are likely to become better at what they do.
On March 1-2, telephones will be ringing. That call will be to solicit support from every alumnus for the 1982-83 Annual Fund Drive.

The interest and support of alumni determines the success of Campbell University School of Law's annual giving program. While it is true that the dollar amount of annual giving is important, it is frequently overlooked that the percentage of alumni contributors is considered of equal or greater significance by foundations, corporations, and other large contributors.

This year's Annual Fund Goal for Alumni is $7,000 and 30% participation. With your assistance, we can do it.

Your contribution will allow Campbell to continue to provide the margin of excellence in its program of legal education which it provided you as a student.

Don't wait for your telephone to ring. Make your commitment now!

SCHOLARSHIP AUCTION TO BE HELD

The Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity and the Gilbert T. Stephenson Trust Club are cosponsoring an auction, the proceeds of which will fund scholarships for law and trust school students. The law fraternity's portion of the proceeds will go towards the funding of the Jackson-Delta Theta Phi Scholarship established in February, 1982, by that law fraternity. Goods and services have been donated by individuals and businesses for the auction, which will be held on the Campbell campus at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 23 in Carter Gym. "The response to requests for donations has been excellent," report Rick Cannon and Darlene Graham, co-chairmen of the Delta Theta Phi Scholarship and Auction Committees. Items which have been donated include jewelry, clothing, watches, sewing machines and books. Mr. Cary Stewart, a licensed auctioneer, is donating his services to conduct the auction. Even with this excellent response, Delta is still accepting auctionable donations. If you are able to contribute—or know someone who is—contact Rick or Darlene at the School of Law. And if you can attend the auction on March 23 to "bid up" the items, remember that the money is going into a scholarship fund to assist law students to bear the ever increasing costs of legal education!

First Amendment Program Planned for Law Day

The Student Bar Association has developed an ambitious and interesting program in observation of Law Day on Tuesday, April 5. The program, entitled "Pornography and the First Amendment," will feature a debate between Dorchen Leidholdt and Herold Price Fahringer. Ms. Leidholdt, currently an editor for Random House, is a leader and co-founder of "Women Against Pornography," the best known feminist anti-pornography organization. She has written several articles on pornography, sexual violence, and sexuality, and is currently co-editing an anthology entitled Pornography and Male Sexuality with John Stoltenberg. Mr. Fahringer, one of the nation's leading criminal defense lawyers and a first amendment specialist, has handled over 300 appeals including 14 taken successfully to the Supreme Court. One year ago, he argued on behalf of bookstore proprietors New York v. Farher, in which the Court upheld the constitutionality of New York's anti-child-pornography law. Fahringer has handled over a hundred cases dealing with pornography and has represented well-known publishers. Fahringer also recently defended Newport society figure Claus von Bulow. This debate will be held at the Mission Valley Inn in Raleigh on Tuesday, April 5 beginning at 5:30 p.m. Alumni and the general public are invited to attend. There is no admission charge. At 7:00 p.m. that evening, the Student Bar Association will sponsor its annual Law Day Banquet and Spring Awards Program, also at the Mission Valley Inn. Invitations will go out to alumni in the near future. The anticipated cost of the banquet will be under $12 per person, but specific details will be included in your invitations. Please make your reservations before March 30.
EUGENE COMPTON has been informed that he has passed all three parts of the Florida bar exam. He's just waiting now to get sworn in.

GAIL FANNON has left the faculty of the UNC-G School of Business to establish a solo practice in Boone, N.C.

STEVE GRAHAM became associated with the Conway law firm of Johnson, Johnson & Johnson on October 1, 1982. For the last three years, Steve was an assistant district attorney in the Sixth Judicial District.

MIKE JOHNSON and Martha Lewis Payne of Currituck were married on November 20, 1982.

STEVE MESSICK and Sondra Coyne of Greensboro were married on September 25, 1982.

FRANK PARRISH and wife Anne have a new daughter--Erin Nicole Parrish. Erin was born October 30, 1982 at 6:14 a.m.—weight: 10 lbs. 5 oz.—2 inches long. Anne writes: "What a big girl. Doing fine. Jason is already reading her about Sioux Indians, Treasure Island, and giving her geography lessons with his globe! . . . Frank is very happy with his work and has an extremely heavy caseload right now."

BILL PULLY has left his practice with Dill, Exum, Fountain & Hoyle in Rocky Mount to be Executive Assistant to Second District Congressman Tim Valentine (D-NC). Bill had managed the Congressman's successful campaign last year.

MARK SPENCE left the Manteo firm of Twiford, Derrick & Spence to establish the firm of Aycock & Spence in Nags Head.

BENJAMIN N. THOMPSON was recently selected as the new attorney for the Harnett County Board of Education.

PHIL HOLMES has left the staff of the District Attorney's Office in Jackson, NC and joined the staff of the Public Defender in Greensboro.

CHARLES A. JONES was commissioned as a Marine lieutenant in April, 1981 after completing Officer Candidate School in Quantico, VA. After completing further training at the Basic School in Quantico and at Naval Justice School in Newport, Rhode Island, he reported for duty at Camp Lejeune in January, 1982. He served as the Staff Judge Advocate (military lawyer) for the 32d Marine Amphibious Unit (MAU) during its recent six-month deployment in the Mediterranean. The MAU served twice in Beirut, Lebanon as a component of the Multinational Force and assisted in the evacuation of the PLO from Beirut.

CAROL MORRISON has finished her clerkship with the U.S. Bankruptcy Court and has opened her own office in Fayetteville.

JIM NELSON is now a partner in the Greenville, NC firm of Owens & Rouse.

RICHARD ABERNETHY has left the Houston County District Attorney's Office to join the Kings Mountain firm of Corry and Abernethy. Richard also has joined the ranks of the married. His wife's name is Sherry.

PENNY CANNON is now a partner in the Richmond, Virginia firm of Haskins, Moore & Cannon.

From BRADLEY ELLIOTT: "I was once again pleased to receive my Law Alumni Newsletter this morning. It's the only bulk mail that gets read word by word in this office. "Things continue to be financially bleak but professionally rewarding here. I'm doing a fair amount of indigent criminal defense work and a couple of civil cases and whatever comes into the office from the world of depression outside. At the meeting of the Halifax County Bar Association just past, I was voted vice-president for 1983."
"Also, my family exhibits some evidence of success with an addition to the firm on August 30, 1982, of young Joel Thomas Elliott, who is currently standing up with my assistance despite the fat deposits which cover his body and stand out so, especially when he smiles. Everybody ought to have about four children."

CHARLES HARDEE and brother WAYNE HARDEE (1982) are both associated with the Greenville, NC firm of James, Hite, Cavendish & Blount. Last fall, they assisted Mr. Blount in a trial which awarded a $1 million judgment. An interesting aspect of this case was that all evidence was presented in one day of trial which included opening statements, 17 witnesses (one defense witness), 35 exhibits, interrogatories and answers and a deposition. Closing statements were made the next morning. The jury deliberated approximately two hours and returned before lunch.

JAY WELCH has left his solo practice to take the position of Assistant General Counsel with the Missouri Department of Revenue in Jefferson City, Missouri.

JEN HARDISON has left the Beaufort, N.C. firm of Warren J. Davis, P.A. to establish a solo practice in Dunn.

KARL KNIGHT joined the staff of the District Attorney in Asheville on December 6. Karl worked with the law firm of Bill Eubanks in Black Mountain before joining the district attorney's staff.

FRANK LANIER has opened his own practice in Angier.

STEVE MEDLIN graduated from the FBI Academy on November 24, 1982, and received his credentials as Special Agent on that day.

TIM NOE is now a partner in the Spring Lake law firm of Finch & Noe.

EDDIE WINSTEAD has entered private practice in Sanford as an associate with fellow Campbell law alumnus ED BULLARD (1980).

NOTE: The Editor is not a mindreader. Please let her know what's going on with you!
