U.S. SUPREME COURT BAR NOW INCLUDES CAMPBELL LAWYERS

On Monday, November 15 at 10:00 a.m. when the United States Supreme Court convened, fourteen anxious Campbell lawyers were sitting before the bench. A few minutes later, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger granted the motion made by Acting Dean Robert A. Jenkins to admit these fourteen Campbell alumni to the Supreme Court bar and had the Clerk administer the oath. Eight of the nine Supreme Court Justices witnessed the ceremony. The Rules of the U.S. Supreme Court require that an attorney be licensed for three years before he or she can be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court. This year was the first time that any Campbell lawyers have been eligible for admission.

The fourteen members of the Charter Class who made the trek to Washington for the ceremony were: Steve Bowden, Jim Carter, Margaret Currin, Roger Edwards, Jane Gray, Greg Griffin, John Halstead, Earl Jones, Bill Mathers, Alan Pittman, Cabel Regan, Dave Stanley, Ben Thompson, and Bob Worthington. A number of other charter graduates chose to be admitted by mail.

LAW SCHOOL RECEIVES MAJOR GIFT—SOON TO ANNOUNCE LIBRARY ENDOWMENT DRIVE

Campbell University School of Law recently received a cash gift of $500,000 in preparation for an upcoming drive to endow the law library collections. The donor hopes that his gift will generate other contributions and pledges and that it will be matched before the Law Library Endowment Drive is formally announced.

Each alum will be receiving additional information about the Law Library Endowment Drive in the near future. Because of the nature of this effort, there will be a number of unique giving opportunities in which Campbell lawyers will be able to participate. Be on the lookout for more information soon!

After the ceremony, the new admittees, families, and friends had lunch in the Senators' Dining Room of the United States Capitol.

Next spring, the Alumni Office again will survey eligible members to see if there is enough interest to warrant another trip. Be thinking about it!
On Friday, October 1, the School of Law featured for its alumni a continuing legal education program on the use of microcomputer technology in the law office. Conducting the program was Professor Richard T. Rodgers of the Law Faculty.

Professor Rodgers is a national leader in the rapidly expanding field of computer utilization in the legal profession and a frequent state and national lecturer on law office microcomputer applications.
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ESTABLISHED—OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS ELECTED

On Saturday, October 2, Campbell law alumni adopted a constitution and bylaws for its Law Alumni Association and elected its first set of officers of the Association.

Elected President of the Association was John M. Tyson ('79) of Fayetteville. John has recently been appointed to the position of Real Estate representative and Counsel for Revco Drug Stores, Inc. in the South-Central Region, which includes North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware.

Elaine Capps ('81) of Lillington was elected Vice-President. Elaine is engaged in the general practice of law with the law firm of Edgar R. Bain.

Sam Clawson ('80) of Charleston, South Carolina, was elected Secretary of the newly-formed association. Sam is a partner in the general practice law firm of Clawson and Staubes.

Margaret Currin ('79), by virtue of her position as Assistant Dean for Alumni Relations, will serve as treasurer of the association.

In addition to the officers, nine members were elected to the Board of Directors. Elected for three year terms were Cabell Regan ('79), Beverly Massey ('80), and McNeil Chestnut ('81). Ben Thompson ('79), Jim Corriher ('80), and Tania Leon ('82) were elected to two year terms; and Steve Bowden ('79), Bruce Jackson ('79), and Hunter Wyche ('80) were elected for a one year term.
DR. JOHN BRODERICK lectured at the Fourth Annual Oxford Comparative Legal Seminar at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford University, England. His topic for this seminar, sponsored by Nova University, was "International Commercial Arbitration: A Comparative Study; United States - United Kingdom." This was Dr. Broderick's third appearance at Nova's Oxford program. "The Chief" also lectured at Nova's Amsterdam, Holland program on August 17-18 on the topic "International Law."

Adjunct Professor CHARLES CASE married on August 28. The bride is Margie Toy, an attorney with the Raleigh firm of Maupin, Taylor and Ellis.

Professor CHARLES GAMBLE, who taught during the summer of 1978, has written, with Donald E. Corley, a comprehensive study of damages law entitled Law of Damages. Professor Gamble's book was published by The Harrison Company. Professor Gamble joined the faculty of his alma mater, the University of Alabama School of Law, last year and this year became its acting dean.

Adjunct Professor of Health Law EDWARD E. HOLLOWELL has been elected to the Board of Directors of the American Society of Law and Medicine. The Society is a national organization of lawyers, physicians, dentists, and other health care professionals. Professor Hollowell is an author and lecturer in health law and is on the faculty of East Carolina University School of Medicine and the University of North Carolina School of Public Health.

Acting Dean ROBERT JENKINS and wife Pat became the proud grandparents of Andrew Thomas Jenkins on August 27, 1982. Andrew's parents are the Jenkins' son Tom and his wife Barbara.

Professor RICK LORD's book, ARCO's Complete Preparation for the Multistate Bar Examination has been published. Professor Lord is currently in the midst of research for several projects.

(2) a book on basic North Carolina contract law; and

(3) a book on basic North Carolina commercial law.

In addition, he has several articles coming out in the near future:

(1) "Contract Law and Public Policy" in a University of North Dakota School of Law faculty journal;

(2) "The Merger of Contract and Tort: The Shotgun Phenomenon and the Fine Line," in the University of Bridgeport School of Law Student Newspaper Common Pleas;

DR. J. STANLEY McQUADE gave stellar continuing medical education presentations to Tennessee physicians on August 3 and to the Swain County (N.C.) Medical Society on August 4.

Professor RICK RODGERS was a key speaker at the Georgia Bar Association's CLE Institute on Law Office Economics on June 23, 1982, in Atlanta. On November 5, he was a featured speaker at an ABA-sponsored National Conference of Young Lawyers Division officers from the ABA and from state bar organizations. On February 18, 1983, Professor Rodgers will conduct a computer seminar in Philadelphia for the ABA Section of Economics of Law Practice. In addition, Professor Rodgers will be a featured speaker at seminars on Microcomputers in Law Offices in St. Thomas (January 3-10, 1983) and at the University of Texas - Austin (March 23, 1983.)

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!
CONFESSIONS OF A "LAWFUL" MOVIE STAR

by

Ron Campbell ('80)

A sole practitioner leads an exciting and frustrating life. Each phone call into the office represents a unique opportunity for success or failure. It's like fishing off an ocean pier--each bite leads to an unusual catch.

Nothing prepared me for that surprising call in June.

The caller wanted to know if I would audition for a comic role in a featured film. Not taking him seriously, I said, "Yes."

The audition date was for the following Friday, and my calendar showed a brief court appearance scheduled. The attorney who is subletting space in my suite agreed to cover in court, so I was on my way.

It was a pleasant drive from Raleigh to Shelby, N.C., the home of E. O. Studios. Two years prior, the studio, in desperation, had called me to play a Baptist Preacher in a film. For that one I was required to be on the set just one day. That's what I expected this time.

At the movie studio I was handed the audition script. Quickly, my adrenalin began to flow. I found myself wanting very much to be chosen.

The movie's director and one of the producers conducted the screen test. A television camera was set up, and the session went well. The director was actually the same one I had had on the film two years earlier.

Flattered to be asked to audition, I told him that he should consider the 95% of unemployed performers in New York and California. I did not need the screen credit, the work, or the money. His response was that he would pick the person who best matched those already selected in the cast.

The official invitation came that night when I arrived home.

The film is a comedy filmed entirely in 3-D. It isn't the garbage stuff of the 50's now seen on TV. The state-of-the-art cameras and newly patented lenses produce an incredible product. (As a matter of fact, Universal Studios is currently filming "JAWS III" in 3-D.)

"HOT HEIR" (the film's working title) should open in the spring of 1983. It is a visually exciting film because of the specially featured hot air balloons.

The film's plot is simple. An aviation pioneer, who is extremely wealthy, has an accident on his ninetieth birthday while involved in his latest passion--the sport of hot air ballooning. His estate and various holding companies are to go to his only surviving kin, a professional photographer batchelor in San Francisco.

I play a bumbling bad guy--a henchman to the embezzling business manager of the aviation tycoon. My character's name is Weems, and he is a combination of Dom Deluise, Zero Mostel, and Oliver Hardy.

In the film, I am sent to San Francisco to "do in" the romantic lead. Afraid of guns and personal violence, my character purchases a poisonous snake at a pet store. Sneaking into the photographer's apartment, I release the snake while he is in the shower. Narrowly missing discovery while hiding in the closet and under the bed, I watch my first plan fail miserably. Next I try to sabotage the apartment building elevator's cables, but that idea has no luck either.

Finally, I crawl under the man's car to cut his brake lines. This time my idea works; but as I walk away, the car begins to roll down the hill behind me. Weems turns around with a terrified look as the car catapults him onto the hood. The car careens out of control, with me holding on for dear life, until it crashes into a parked garbage truck. Again Weems find himself in the air, this time landing unconscious in the garbage. When he awakes, Weems finds himself in the city dump.

Filming the dump scene was less than thrilling. With the 20 foot pile of debris in the background, the art director set the film area with additional "clean" junk. However, the prop mistress wanted realism; so she obtained 50 gallons of fish bones, heads, and entrails. The stench was overwhelming. It was a real race to see whether I would first faint or get sick.

During the weeks of filming, the size of my role changed. The five to six weeks have stretched to twelve; and instead of being billed as a featured supporting player, I now have starring credits. With the scheduled release of the film in May, I definitely plan to boost the box-office receipts for whatever theatre "HOT HEIR" plays in Raleigh.

LAW FACULTY SETS UP STUDENT LOAN FUND

The faculty and staff of the School of Law have established a charitable fund for the benefit of Campbell University law students in financial need. The general purpose of the fund will be to provide assistance in the form of no-interest and low-interest loans to needy law students. The fund principal will be financed by contributions from law school faculty and staff, and from any additional persons who wish to contribute.

According to Professor Richard Braun, chairman of the Loan Fund Committee, $6,000 has already been pledged so far by the faculty to the loan fund for this fiscal year.

ALUMNI HELP IN RECRUITING

A number of Campbell lawyers are visiting area colleges or colleges of which they are graduates to help recruit students for Campbell University School of Law.

Tom Lanier, Admissions Director, has been overwhelmed with the initial enthusiastic response of alumni to this effort. He will be contacting others in the near future about this program, and encourages anyone who is interested to contact him for additional information.

Those who currently are participating are listed below, along with the names of the schools they are visiting:

Steve Bowden ('79) - Bennett College
Dan Christian ('79) - Lenoir Rhyne College
Sam Clawson ('80) - Baptist College and College of Charleston
Jim Corriher ('80) - Catawba College
David Gantt ('81) - University of North Carolina - Asheville
Charles Hardee ('81) - East Carolina University
Bruce Jackson ('79) - University of North Carolina - Wilmington
Dickie Jones ('80) - The Citadel
John Painter ('81) - Wingate College
David White ('80) - Wofford College and University of South Carolina - Spartanburg
Robert Winfrey ('81) - Elizabeth City State University LAW ALUMNI ADJUNCTS IN ADVOCACY PROGRAM

Henry Willis (79), Ben Thompson (79), Elaine Capps (81), and Rick Hager (79) have begun working as adjunct professors in the Campbell Trial Advocacy program.

These alumni act as Judges and provide critiques and practical comments about the student performances in the simulated trial setting. The addition of these attorneys to the adjunct faculty has been helpful to Professors Jenkins and Anderson as well as the students by providing realistic insight into the problems that are encountered in the litigation process.

CAMPBELL LAW GRADS DO WELL ON JULY BAR

Campbell law graduates continued their traditionally good performance on the North Carolina bar exam. This July 489 applicants took the bar exam for the first time, and 364 (or 74.4%) passed. Of Campbell's first-time candidates, 84% (69 out of 82) were successful. Twenty percent (1 of 5) Campbell repeaters passed the exam.

To date, Campbell grads are batting .1000 on out-of-state bar exams taken in July. Only one state remains to be heard from.

AGRICULTURAL LAW CLE
PROGRAM HELD

Campbell's first continuing legal education program on agricultural law was held October 29 at the Raleigh Marriott. The topic, "Statutory Present Use Valuation for Property Tax of Agricultural, Horticultural, and Forestry Land in North Carolina," was derived from the October, 1981 Supreme Court case, In re McElwee.

ALUMNI PLACEMENT

In the first three issues, one page or more of the Law Alumni Newsletter has been devoted to a listing of alumni job opportunities. Since this listing is redundant of and less timely than the information contained in the Alumni Placement Newsletter, we are ceasing to include this column in the quarterly newsletter.

The Alumni Placement Newsletter is published twice monthly and distributed to any interested law alum. If you are not now receiving the placement newsletter and would like to, just fill out the form below and mail it to the Placement Office.

JIM BAILEY began working as a clerk with the North Carolina Industrial Commission on August 1, 1982. The Industrial Commission decides worker's compensation cases. If anyone has any worker's compensation cases or problems, Jim offers his assistance. In addition, Jim and wife Betty had their second child, a daughter, on October 20, 1982.

JIM CARTER is active on the Student Advocacy Committee of the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers.

GENE COMPTON has returned to Virginia and established a new law firm. Meanwhile, he is awaiting the results of the Florida Bar Exam.

DANNY DAVIS and wife Ann had a 7 lb. 14 oz. daughter, Patience Ann, on June 11, 1982.

JANE GRAY reports, "Guess it's been a dull year! I'm just plugging along as usual."

CINDY HUNTSBERRY and husband Alan had their first child, son William Edward, on September 13, 1982. William Edward weighed 8 lbs. 10 oz. and was 22 inches long.

RICK JACKSON has left the Fayetteville firm of Brady, Jackson, and Peck and opened his solo practice in Hope Mills.

LARRY NORMAN is president of the Franklin County Chamber of Commerce. He and wife Kathy had their second son, William Blair Norman, on September 9, 1982.

TIM PATTI has left the Gastonia law firm of Forbes and Schultz and has joined the staff of the Gaston County District Attorney's Office.

GARY RAGLAND has accepted chairmanship of the Professional Division of the 1983 United Way of Johnston County campaign.

CABELL REGAN and wife Lisa had a daughter, Liana Elizabeth, on September 28, 1982.

CECIL SUMMERS left the Greensboro law firm of Bowden and Bowden on September 1, 1982, to become a partner in the Winston-Salem law firm of Henderson and Summers.

M. JEAN CALHOUN has left the law firm of Barringer, Allen & Pinnix to establish her own general practice law firm in Raleigh.

MAC CAMERON and LYNN COLEMAN were married on November 6, 1982, at Richlands United Methodist Church, Richlands, N.C. Lynn is also town attorney for Richlands.

PHIL FEAGAN has been appointed by Governor Hunt as Chairman of the Polk County Committee for America's Four Hundredth Anniversary. The first official project will be a visit in April of 1984 by an American delegation to Plymouth, England, from which Philip Amadas’ Roanoke expedition set sail 400 years earlier. An English delegation is due in Manteo in July of 1984, the quadricentennial of the landing of that expedition. That date is also scheduled for the christening of a sailing ship, to be named the Elizabeth II and to be built in the style of the 16th century. Phil is also city chairman for the Polk County Heart Fund Drive and third vice-chairman of the Polk County Democrat Party.

TOM HOLT and wife Nancy had a daughter, Mary Ruth Thompson Holt, on May 13, 1982.

From Lt. CHARLES A. JONES, USMC: "There is only one Marine lawyer who acts as the legal adviser to the colonel commanding Marine forces in Lebanon. As I sit here in Beirut in a camouflage uniform wearing a .45 and practicing law, I try to figure out how a nice assignment in Camp Lejeune turned into a six-month odyssey. I'm attached to the 32d Marine Amphibious Unit. We sailed in circles for 50 days near Beirut, went to Naples, returned to Beirut to evacuate the PLO, returned to Naples, and then back here for "Beirut II." We leave Beirut soon and go to Morocco for a few days before sailing to Morehead City. The keys to success as the lawyer for a deployed unit are flexibility, ability to improvise, and ability to laugh at the unbelievable things which occur. Never a dull moment."

JOHN J. ("JERRY") PECK left Dyneteria, Inc. where he had served as its general counsel from his graduation until February, 1982. From February through July, 1982, he was a partner in the law firm of Brady, Jackson, and Peck with offices in Jacksonville and Fayetteville. On August 1, 1982, he started a solo practice in Jacksonville. Jerry also has been recently admitted to practice before the United States Court of Military Appeals.
