JENKINS RECOGNIZED AS THE BEST

Campbell Law Professor Wins National Award

Robert A. Jenkins, Professor of Law at Campbell University's Norman Adrian Wiggins School of Law, was recently honored by Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity International at the law fraternity's biennial convention held in Houston, Texas August 9th - 12th. Jenkins was named Delta's "Outstanding Professor in the Nation" for 1988-89.

The prestigious award is made annually by the executive board of the 90,000 member organization. Prof. Jenkins was nominated for the honor by the Robert C. Bryan Senate of Delta Theta Phi, the fraternity's Campbell chapter.

Currently beginning his thirteenth year of full-time teaching at Campbell after more than 20 years of law practice, Jenkins has taught a variety of courses but is best known for the extensive third-year trial and appellate advocacy course that he designed. The Campbell trial program itself was the 1986 winner of the American College of Trial Lawyers' coveted Emil Gumpert Award for the outstanding trial program in the nation.

Patrick K. Hetrick, Dean of Campbell's law school, wholeheartedly agreed with Delta's choice of Jenkins as recipient of the award.

"Professor Jenkins designed and implemented the most comprehensive trial advocacy program in American legal education," according to Hetrick. "A legal scholar and lawyer's lawyer, he is at home teaching both substantive and practical law school courses. He richly deserves the Delta honor because he is truly 'outstanding' in the classroom."

In addition to trial advocacy, Jenkins also teaches criminal law, evidence, and admiralty law and has taught civil procedure for several years. Before coming to Campbell, Jenkins also taught briefly at the University of Detroit Law School. On several occasions since assuming full-time teaching he has been on the faculty of trial advocacy programs sponsored by the National Institute for Trial Advocacy and the Loyola (University Law School) Institute for Trial Advocacy in New Orleans.

In commenting on the recent honor, Jenkins said, "This is an undeserved honor that I will nevertheless cherish -- most of all because the impetus for it came from my students. Their confidence is supremely gratifying."

LAW FRATERNITY HOLDS RECEPTION FOR AWARD RECIPIENTS

On October 12, Campbell’s Bryan Senate of Delta Theta Phi held a reception honoring recipients of Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity International awards. The reception was held at noon in the law school’s largest classroom and was attended by students, faculty, and deans.

The honorees were Professor Robert Jenkins, the National Outstanding Professor of 1988-89 (see cover story), Sonya Loving, Regional Outstanding Student Member for 1988-89, and the Bryan Senate itself, Regional Outstanding Senate for 1988-89.

Plaques were presented to the recipients by Dean Patrick Hetrick who recognized the many accomplishments of Professor Jenkins, the Bryan Senate, and its "Dean," Ms. Loving.

The Bryan Senate is named in honor of prominent Dunn, North Carolina attorney Robert C. Bryan.
TRIAL ADVOCACY:
DO YOU REMEMBER . . . ?

'Tis the season... for criminal trials in Campbell’s award-winning Trial & Appellate Advocacy Program. Third-year students have striven diligently this fall to conquer fundamental trial skills in their weekly afternoon training sessions.

They are using those skills to prosecute or defend short jury trials in simulated criminal cases. Some Campbell Lawyers are having flashbacks as they serve as volunteer judges for the trials. We thought these pictures taken during a recent afternoon session in the courtroom would trigger some flashbacks for other Campbell Lawyers.

Do you remember . . .

knowing you were in trouble...

(Student litigators: Karen Caviness and Michael Malone)

... when the judge laughed at the basis of your objection?

(Judge: Professor Cassidy Fritz)

what tough jurors your classmates made?

The feeling of relief you experienced when your turn ended and the professor called for a new set of attorneys?

. . . when Professor Jenkins played the witness role?

(Student litigators: Penny Joyner and Chip Hewett)
CLASS OF 1980:
CAN YOU BELIEVE IT'S BEEN 10 YEARS?

During a fit of nostalgia, one member of the Class of 1980 (who still haunts the halls of Kivett) rummaged through the law school's archives and unearthed photographs apparently taken during the Class's second year of law school. We thought you might enjoy seeing some of her discoveries.

Come to the Reunion honoring the Class of 1980 on April 28 and see how much younger we all look! (Details on next page.)

Do you remember Dickie Jones' suit? Here's undeniable evidence. Dickie, Jim Corrisshe, and Ford Coley (from L to r.) were your second-year Honor Court Representatives.

Women-in-Law officers (L to r.) Laura Shiver, Laura Burgess, Jackie Brown, and Debbie Slack.

Who could forget classes with "The Chief?"

Delta Theta Phi officers Tom Holt (2d from L), Elizabeth Hickmon Peck (beside Tom), and Jerry Townson (2d from r.).

Sam Meekins and Don Teeter appear to be boycotting ties.

George Palmer demonstrated his putting skills at the Myrtle Beach reunion. What'll he do this time?
CLASS OF 1980 TO BE HONORED AT ANNUAL REUNION

It's time! Believe it or not, May 1990 marks the tenth anniversary of the graduation of Campbell's second law school class. It's time to celebrate!

On Saturday, April 28, 1990, all alumni and their spouses or guests are invited to a reunion honoring those 95 Campbell Lawyers who made up the Class of 1980.

Events start in Buies Creek Saturday morning with golf and tennis. We have reserved a block of tee times at Keith Hills Golf Course from 9-10 a.m. You may choose to play 9 or 18 holes and may arrange your own foursome. Tennis will be at Campbell's Tennis Center and you may arrange your opponents or doubles partner. Last year, alums from several different classes enjoyed a great day of golf and a lot of good fellowship.

The festivities move to the Velvet Cloak Inn in Raleigh for the main portion of the reunion Saturday evening. The reunion banquet starts at 7:00 p.m. and features a great buffet and brief greetings from some 1980 graduates. The cost of the banquet is $25.00 per person.

Immediately before the banquet, Smith, Debnam, Hibbert & Pahl, the Raleigh law firm of 1980 graduate Hunter Wyche, will hold a reception for members of the Class of 1980.

After the banquet, all alumni and their guests are invited to attend a party at the Velvet Cloak hosted by some of the members of the Class of 1980.

A block of rooms is being held at the Velvet Cloak for both Friday and Saturday nights. The rooms are $49 for a single and $59 for a double room. Room reservations can be made by calling the Velvet Cloak at 1-800-662-8829 in North Carolina and 1-800-334-4372 outside North Carolina. Be sure to mention the Campbell Law School Reunion when making the reservations.

This reunion continues the tradition we began last year and, based on last year's activities, is certain to be a great time! To make reservations for any reunion activities, just complete the form below and return it to Assistant Dean Beverly Massey at P.O. Box 158, Buies Creek, NC 27506.

If you have any questions or comments, call Beverly Massey at (919) 893-8479.

MEYER RECEIVES IREDELL AWARD

North Carolina Supreme Court Justice Louis B. Meyer has been chosen by the Campbell members of Phi Alpha Delta International Law Fraternity (PAD) as this year's recipient of the James Iredell Award. The award is given annually for outstanding contribution to the North Carolina legal community and the School of Law.

Justice Meyer was honored during the James Iredell Award Banquet held Wednesday, October 25. The Iredell Award and the banquet are sponsored by Campbell's James Iredell Chapter of PAD.

The banquet was held at the Raleigh Radisson Hotel and began with an hour of fellowship and appetizers. Will Mayo, a third-year law student and Chief Justice of PAD, presided during the banquet.

Dean Patrick Hetrick extended a special welcome to North Carolina Supreme Court Justices John Webb, Burley B. Mitchell, Jr., Harry C. Martin, and Henry E. Frye; and North Carolina Court of Appeals Judges Hugh A. Wells and Robert F. Orr. Also present were two former Iredell Award recipients, Dr. John J. (The Chief) Broderick, now Distinguished Professor Emeritus of Law at Campbell, and The Honorable Joseph Branch, former Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Justice Branch, a long time friend and colleague of Justice Meyer's, delivered remarks recognizing Justice Meyer's many contributions to the profession and the state. Justice Branch described Justice Meyer's background and legal career as one of industry, achievement, and determination. He also described Justice Meyer as a talented and conscientious justice of the Supreme Court and a man who serves well in all aspects of his life, including his community life and his church life.

Justice Meyer's career includes service as a Special Agent for the FBI, a 1st Lieutenant in the US Army, an Adjunct Professor of Business Law at Atlantic Christian College, and a private practitioner for eighteen years. His legal career began in 1960 as a law clerk at the NC Supreme Court, after graduating from Wake Forest University School of Law. He was appointed Associate Justice of the NC Supreme Court in 1981, was elected to the Court in 1982, and was re-elected in 1986. He is a former President of the Wilson County and 7th Judicial Bar Associations, a former Vice President of the North Carolina Bar Association, an Elk, a Mason, and a Sunday School Teacher and former Deacon and Trustee of the First Baptist Church in Wilson, NC.

"I have always been impressed with the work ethic and professionalism of the Campbell University Law School students."
Justice Louis B. Meyer

After Justice Branch's heart-felt remarks, Will Mayo presented the Iredell Award to Justice Meyer. Upon receiving the award, Meyer expressed his sincere appreciation for the award, and his pride in the achievements of the faculty of Campbell's law school. He also thanked Dean Hetrick for his keen interest in his students. Praising Campbell law students, Justice Meyer said, "I have always been impressed with the work ethic and professionalism of the Campbell University Law School students."

After Justice Meyer's response to the presentation of the Award, second-year student David Mills presented rare volumes of the writings of James Iredell to Justice Meyer and former Chief Justice Branch on behalf of Governor James Martin and the North Carolina Historical Society.

Justice Meyer is the 11th recipient of the James Iredell award. Former recipients, in addition to Justice Branch and Dr. Broderick, include: NC Secretary of State Thad Eure, US Senator Robert Morgan, Judge James H. Pou Bailey, US Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., former NC Supreme Court Chief Justice Susie M. Sharp, Dr. Hugh W. Divine, Dr. Robert E. Lee and former NC Supreme Court Justice I. Beverly Lake, Sr.
SCENES FROM THE 1989 IREDELL BANQUET
HONORING JUSTICE LOUIS B. MEYER

Approximately 200 students, faculty, alumni, judges, and friends enjoyed the reception and banquet.

Will Mayo, third-year student and Chief Justice of PAD, presented the Iredell Award to Justice Meyer.

Campbell Lawyer Connie Carrigan ('89), who is Justice Meyer’s law clerk, and Professor Rick Rodgers had an opportunity to chat before the banquet.

Dean Pat Herick, Justice Meyer, and 1987 Iredell Award recipient Joseph Branch, who delivered remarks about Justice Meyer at the banquet (L to R).

Justice and Mrs. Meyer (Evelyn) with their two sons, Adam (L) and Louis B., III (R), and Louis’s wife, Jaye.

NC Supreme Court Justice Burley Mitchell (L) and NC Court of Appeals Judge Hugh Wells were among several of Justice Meyer’s colleagues attending the banquet.

Future Campbell Lawyer David Mills presented Justice Meyer and former Chief Justice Branch rare volumes of the writings of James Iredell on behalf of Governor Martin and the North Carolina Historical Society.

Campbell's School of Law will hold its annual celebration of Law Day February 23 and 24. This year's celebration includes two events: the annual Law Day Banquet on Friday, February 23 and the annual Law School Parents and Family Day on Saturday, February 24.

The underlying theme of this year's Law Day Banquet Program is business ethics and their effect on discovery techniques in litigation. The featured speaker will be prominent Winston-Salem attorney William F. Maready who represented the widow of astronaut Michael J. Smith in a successful products liability suit that emerged from the 1986 Challenger Shuttle explosion. Maready was also a close friend of Smith.

In June, 1989 Maready made a similar presentation at the North Carolina Bar Association Annual Meeting in Asheville, North Carolina. His presentation for Campbell's Law Day will be a condensed version of his earlier presentation.

Maready practices law with the Winston-Salem, North Carolina firm of Petree, Stockton and Robinson. He was the founder and first chairman of the Litigation Section of the North Carolina Bar Association.

The banquet, which is sponsored by Campbell's Student Bar Association, will be held on Friday, February 23, at the Raleigh Marriott/ Crabtree Valley. It will get under way at 5:00 p.m. with a reception. Maready's speech will follow the reception at 6:00, and dinner will be served at 7:00. Student awards will be presented after dinner.

The public is invited to attend the banquet and tickets can be purchased by completing the reply form on this page. The cost of the tickets is $16.50 per person.

Campbell's Law Day celebration will continue on Saturday, February 24 when the students and faculty at the law school welcome parents and families of the students to campus. The law school's Parents and Family Day is designed to inform the families of law students about various law school activities and to help them better understand the educational process. All current students and their parents will receive invitations and registration materials.

Assistant Dean Beverly Massey calls the day "a great chance for families to learn what 'their' law students are doing and it gives them the chance to enjoy fellowship with other law students' families.*

All parents and families of law students are encouraged to attend the entire Law Day celebration: the banquet and student recognition ceremony on Friday evening and the Parents and Family Day on Saturday.

Campbell's Law Day celebration is held in connection with Law Day U.S.A. Law Day U.S.A. was conceived in 1957 by Charles S. Rhyne, originally from Charlotte, who was then the President of the American Bar Association. President Dwight D. Eisenhower established Law Day by Presidential Proclamation in 1958, and it was reaffirmed by a joint resolution of Congress in 1961.

1990 marks the thirty-third celebration of Law Day U.S.A. The purpose of Law Day U.S.A. is to reserve *a special day of celebration by the American people in appreciation of their liberties and to provide an occasion for rededication to the ideals of equality and justice under laws. * Campbell University keeps the tradition alive through its annual Law Day celebration.

Law Day U.S.A. is held nationally on May 1, but because of Campbell's busy exam schedule at that time the local celebration has been moved to February.

Faculty Profile

In this issue of the Campbell Lawyer we continue a series of interviews with law school faculty members. Our second profile features Professor Richard T. Rodgers. Professor Rodgers joined the law school's faculty in 1982, after practicing law in Highlands, NC for eleven years, where he founded the firm of Rodgers, Cabler & Hanson. He received his A.B. and J.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a nationally recognized expert on the use of computers in law offices and this interview focuses on his interests and recent activities in that area.

The Campbell Lawyer also takes this opportunity to thank Professor Rodgers for so generously sharing his time and expertise in helping us set up this newsletter which is produced "camera ready" using WordPerfect 5.0 on the editor's pc.

Q. Professor Rodgers, I understand you are a television star, as well as a law professor now. Are my sources correct?
A. Let me get back to you on that. Really! I'll have my people call your people and we'll do lunch.... Who loves ya, baby?

Actually, I have "starred" in a half-dozen video tape presentations which are distributed nationally. The most recent is a one-hour video filmed for the ABA in Austin, Texas titled "Using Computers in a Residential Real Estate Practice." The next one on the calendar is on January 30 - that one will be my second live six-hour satellite TV show. The Continuing Legal Education Satellite Network is the sponsor and we'll broadcast it via satellite to CLE receiving stations across North America. Last year, over 2,000 people saw the first show either live or on video tape. We can do as well this time only if all my relatives come back to pack the house.

Q. What is the format of these shows?
A. The video productions are largely hands-on show-and-tell about computers. This technology is new to all of us - and the best way I've found so far to explain to lawyers how it works and what it's good for is in either an on-camera or "live." The object of all this is to inspire the lawyers to return to their offices and harness this technology - so they can ultimately serve their clients better, cheaper and faster.

Q. I also know that you are a very popular and frequent CLE lecturer on the topic of the use of computers in law offices. Have you been conducting any CLE programs lately?
A. I average at least one seminar appearance a month - plus the regular monthly course I teach at the RPW Learning Center in Lexington (suburban Columbia), SC. Last month, I was the featured speaker at the Annual Convention of the National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks at Charleston, SC; this month, I did another presentation for the Nash-Edgecombe Bar Association. Coming up soon is a program for the NC Bar Association's Real Property Section followed (in the same weekend!) with a seven hour presentation to the Virginia Academy of Trial Lawyers. I do it because I love rubber chicken and little peas you have to chase all over the plate (just to get them on the knife).

But seriously, my favorite speaking forum is at RPW Learning Center. That's a two and one-half day hands-on program for lawyers (and support staff!) on advanced uses of WordPerfect in a law practice. I began teaching this program over two years ago and it's still a lot of fun. Lawyers from 31 states and two foreign countries (Australia and Canada) have attended - and they are really on the front line of the cutting edge of this technology. I learn quite a lot from them.

Q. Have you had any time to write on the subject?
A. Sure! There's lots of time for that. Usually the occasion involves a choice between writing or trying to maintain my physique on airline food. It's a real publish or perish situation. So I write! At the moment, Delta Airlines and I have sired over 200 articles in legal journals, magazines and newspapers. I can probably hit 300 articles by year's end.

Q. Do you have an undergraduate background in computer science?
A. Nope. I'm an English major who went to law school. I've never taken any kind of course in computers. They entered my life as a hobby. It's gotten out of hand. My wife says I should have taken up golf or brain surgery (she says our family could really use a brain surgeon!).

Q. I am a subscriber to your computer bulletin board for lawyers, Frolic & Detour, and I have been amazed at the things I find on it. It is a tremendous service to the bar. How did you get the idea for the board?
A. It's a long story. I got the idea from Jack Benny and Gracie Allen. You see, my kids have a little AT&T stock. The way I figure it, they'll have to get their education off this stuff - so it had better pay good dividends. I started a computer operated Bulletin Board for lawyers - who have to call long distance just to get to the Outer Gates of Buies Creek. So my kids can go to school. It was the least I could do.

Over 1400 lawyers from Geneva, Switzerland to Melbourne, Australia have joined. If you have a modem, call (919) 893-5206 to sign on. It's free! (Except for the cost of the phone call.)

Q. Well, you certainly seem to have a busy schedule. Do you still have time to teach?
A. Sure! Indiana Jones and I have the same class schedule. I always have room for teaching. I am very proud of the Law Office Economics course I teach here. As far as I know, it is the only course of its kind in the nation and is designed to acquaint students with the business aspects of delivering legal services, including harnessing computer technology. I even require them to complete time-keeping and bill drafting assignments! I also teach two real estate courses that are popular with the students.
Faculty Notes

Professor Tom Anderson taught a segment of a NCATL CLE program, "Are You Ready for Trial, Counsellor?" in September at Raleigh. Tom's topic was jury selection in civil cases. He also is spending a substantial amount of time this year on admissions at the law school in his capacity as chairman of the Admissions Committee. One of his duties included signing 900 original letters that were sent to potential law applicants in September!

Dr. John J. Broderick and Professor Dick Braun represented the school of law at the ABA Annual Meeting in Hawaii in August. The topic of the meeting was "Settlement of Disputes in a Pacific Way." According to "The Chief," "It was most interesting, informative, and I had an opportunity to meet with friends and colleagues from across the nation, particularly the judges and attorneys from North Carolina."

Professor Leary Davis completed another issue of the NCBA's Law Office Management Section's newsletter in his capacity as editor and assisted the NC State Bar in a planning conference during September.

Professor Cassidy Fritz accompanied the law school's two National Moot Court teams to the competition in Richmond, VA in November. Cassidy worked with the teams during the fall to help the students develop and practice their oral arguments.

Dean Pat Hetrick recently spoke to the Johnston County Bar Association. Dean Hetrick and Associate Dean for External Affairs Willis Brown have been travelling around the state raising funds for the addition to Kvett Hall. They recently held luncheons in Wilson, Smithfield, Greenville, and Rocky Mount for alumni and other law school supporters.

Professor Charlie Lewis has returned from the sabbatical he took last spring. He spent his spring developing new materials for his Contract Planning Course. He also continues serving on the North Carolina General Statutes Commission. Charlie is presently working on a draft of the Uniform Custodial Trust Act at the Commission. In addition, he is continuing his weekly law column for newspapers around the state. He recently completed his 503rd article!

Professor Bob Loftis is on sabbatical this fall.

Assistant Dean and Professor Beverly Massey has been elected to serve on the Council of the Family Law Section of the North Carolina Bar Association and has been appointed chair of its Nominating Committee. Beverly also serves on the Family Law Section's Continuing Legal Education Committee and served as chair of the Section's Law in the Fifty States Committee in 1988 and 1989. She was a speaker at the Section's annual meeting CLE Workshop at Pinehurst in May and is currently serving as a course planner for the 1990 Annual Meeting CLE Workshop on drafting marital agreements at Charleston, SC in May, 1990.

Associate Dean McLaughlin and
Dean Pat Hetrick have recently completed the 1989 supplement to Webster's Real Estate Law in North Carolina, Third Edition (Michie Co.) which they co-authored in 1988. Dr. Lake is currently revising his section on Wills Contest in Callahan's Actions and Remedies.

Professor Stanley McQuade traveled to Northern Ireland during September, where he was inducted into the prestigious Irish Order of the Harp in recognition of his multi-faceted and outstanding career. He accomplished an amazing number of tasks during his trip, including delivering a paper on Law and Medicine to the Family Planning Association of Northern Ireland; delivering a series of sermons at two Methodist churches in Belfast; delivering a lecture in the Medieval Philosophy Department at Queens University, Belfast; delivering a seminar to doctors of the Graduating Class of 1969, Queens University, titled "Practicing Medicine in an Era of Legal Tension"; consulting with Sir Derrick Burleigh, Vice Chancellor of the University of Ulster; and visiting two Belfast law firms and comparing medical malpractice cases in Northern Ireland with those in the United States.

THE DEAN’S CORNER

by Patrick K. Hetrick

Every Christmas season, I reread Charles Dickens' classic, A Christmas Carol, the best piece of fiction around with the exception of Property 1 bluebooks! I also watch both old and modern movie versions and delight when miserly old Scrooge transforms by Christmas morning. Scrooge ran a "counting house" with Marley, but it could have been a law firm. "Scrooge and Marley" was the firm's name, Marley was long dead, but Scrooge never painted out Marley's name. (Sure it wasn’t a law firm?)

Early in the novel, page 2 to be exact, we get a brief reference by Dickens to the law of wills and estates. After reporting that Marley was "dead as a door-nail," Dickens writes: "Scrooge was his sole executor, his sole administrator, his sole residuary legatee, his sole friend, and sole mourner."

Seven years after Marley's death, Scrooge is visited by a "dreadful apparition." (You probably experienced similar visions during the bar examination!) It's Marley's ghost, and Scrooge comments to the Ghost, "You are fettered. Tell me why?"

"I wear the chain I forged in life," replies the Ghost. "I made it link by link, and yard by yard; I girded it on of my own free will, and of my own free will I wore it."

As Paul Harvey would comment, you know "the rest of the story." Three ghosts visit Scrooge through the night and escort him on time journeys to the past, the present, the future. Talk about qualifying for frequent flyer status in one night!

Scrooge is forced by these visions to reflect on matters, and, more importantly, to take special note of the examples of others - old Fezziwig, Scrooge's nephew, Fred, Bob Cratchit, and the inimitable Tiny Tim, the original Tiny Tim. (This little kid didn't go around with long hair, strumming a ukulele and singing "Tiptoe Through The Tulips"). Speaking of Tiny Tim, I recently asked the faculty how I was doing as dean. One spokesman, paraphrasing Dickens, replied, "I see a vacant seat ... and a crutch without an owner, carefully preserved." I'm not sure what that meant!

Dickens ends the book on a delightful note, but then writers of fiction have much more latitude than those of us who toil on the barren landscape of non-fiction. Webster's Real Estate Law In North Carolina, for example, ends with a chapter on the North Carolina Condominium Act - not exactly a crowd stopping finish. But Dickens really knew how to hold a reader in the palm of his hands. He concludes, as we say in the gobbledegooked legalese of the law, inter alia:

"Scrooge was better than his word. He did it all, and infinitely more; and to Tiny Tim, who did not die, he was a second father. He became as good a friend, as good a master, and as good a man as the good old City knew, or any other good old city, town, or borough in the good old world.

It has been another superb year at the School of Law. Thank you for your encouragement and support through another year. I couldn't do my job without your help. I repeat, THANK YOU! Since you'll be receiving this during the holiday season, it is only appropriate to end with the final sentence in Dickens' book:

"And so, as Tiny Tim observed, God Bless Us, Every One!"
AROUND THE LAW SCHOOL

The Fall '89 semester has been a busy one! The Placement Office has been bustling with activity as students have used its recently expanded facilities in their job searches. Employers have conducted three hundred thirty-four on-campus interviews this fall. Director of Placement Beverly Massey reports that our alumni have been very supportive of students engaged in the placement process.

The Admissions Office has been especially busy this fall, processing applications, conducting admissions interviews, and making recruiting trips to undergraduate campuses across North Carolina and the southeast. The Admissions Office reports a significant increase in the number of applications compared to last year, which was a banner year for admissions. Director of Admissions Tom Lanier reports that our alumni contribute significantly to the admissions process and he continues to count on their support this year.

In addition, student organizations have been engaging in many activities (see stories on pages 2, 6, and 8), faculty members have been engaging in significant activities (see Faculty Notes on page 10) as well as teaching (see page 3), and deans have been deaning. We also have been planning upcoming events (see pages 5 and 8).

We hope all of our alumni will visit the school periodically to see what is going on, but for those who are unable to do so, here are a few pictures from around the law school.
