In August of 1976, the charter class of 97 students commenced their legal studies at Campbell University School of Law. They took a big chance by enrolling in the yet unproven program of the newest law school in the nation, but by the time of their graduation in 1979, Campbell was already well on the way to establishing itself as an exciting innovator, leader and trend setter in legal education.

At the 1985 annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools, Campbell was awarded an "Innovations in Legal Education" booth because of its planning model for legal education. In 1986, the prestigious Emil Gumpert Award was given to Campbell by the American College of Trial Lawyers in recognition of Campbell's excellence in the teaching of trial advocacy. Campbell's law students have proven time and again that they can compete with the best and the brightest from the nation's law schools. In this past academic year, for example, Campbell's trial team was co-champion of the southeast region and advanced to the quarter finals in national competition.

It is within this framework of Campbell's brief but exceedingly strong tradition in legal education, therefore, that I proudly present to you the members of the Classes of 1989 and 1990. In addition to being exposed to the legal theory and reasoning that all law students across the nation receive, Campbell students undergo required and extensive training in practical matters such as trial advocacy, computerized research on Westlaw and Lexis, law office management, and professional responsibility. Ethical issues are explored in all courses in the three year curriculum in order to instill in each law student a sense of the serious responsibilities that come with a license to practice law.

Each of the students pictured in this bulletin gained admission to Campbell only after a required personal interview with a faculty member. Many came to Campbell after establishing other careers in private industry, education, military service, or the health professions. There is a maturity in our student body that should be very attractive to you as a prospective employer.

We invite your inquiries concerning placement opportunities for these fine students. Please plan a visit to our School of Law and contact Assistant Dean Beverly Massey for any assistance that you might require. Feel free to also contact me, Associate Dean James B. McLaughlin, or any member of our faculty for input and assistance.

Sincerely,

Patrick K. Hetrick
Dean
Message from the
Assistant Dean for Placement

I proudly commend to you the classes of 1989 and 1990 of Campbell University School of Law, and invite employers interested in hiring law students or graduates to use the services of our placement office. My assistant, Velma Ellis, and I serve as liaisons between employers and law students or graduates and as sources of information and assistance regarding legal employment. We help employers to identify and contact students and graduates who best meet each employer’s needs for permanent, part-time or summer positions. We offer prospective employers several forms of assistance, and are very willing to structure our services to suit an employer’s particular needs.

I encourage employers to arrange on-campus interviews through the Placement Office. On-campus interviewing is the most cost-effective and time-efficient means of interviewing multiple students in a convenient location during a concentrated time span. Although the majority of employers conducting on-campus interviews visit in the fall, we will schedule interviews at any time. We will be happy to collect and submit resumes to employers prior to their on-campus date, arrange interview schedules, reserve conference rooms, and make all other necessary arrangements. Employers may choose the option of pre-selecting those students they wish to interview on-campus.

We can assist prospective employers who choose not to conduct on-campus interviews by displaying job listings in the Placement Resource Center for viewing by students and alumni and by notifying our students and alumni of job opportunities through semi-monthly published placement newsletters. In addition, we can collect and submit resumes to employers or notify students and graduates to contact the employer directly.

If I can be of any assistance with your hiring needs, please do not hesitate to contact me by using the form on the last page of this bulletin, or, better still, by calling me at (919) 893-4111, ext. 2429. Mrs. Ellis’ extension is 2514, and she will be happy to assist you if I am out of the office.

Thank you for your time and interest. I sincerely hope that it will be possible for you to visit the School, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Beverly W. Massey

Associate Professor of Law

Message From the Student Bar Association President

Dear Friends,

Greetings from the classes of 1989 and 1990! As you examine this bulletin, you will see that our students come from all over the United States. Though we are diverse in our backgrounds, we come to Buies Creek with one goal in mind: to become both ethical and competent lawyers.

Our curriculum is designed with a focus on the practical application of the law, including required courses in the areas of legal economics, law office management, and perhaps the most intensive trial and appellate advocacy program in the nation. In addition to completing a minimum of 90 hours and a demanding writing requirement, our students participate in many extra-curricular activities and organizations. The following three pages explain our curriculum and extra-curricular activities.

Our students and graduates are equipped with the practical skills to step in and immediately contribute to your firm. It is with great excitement that the Classes of 1989 and 1990 look forward to meeting this challenge.

Campbell’s award-winning Trial Advocacy Program was well represented in the 1988 National Trial Competition in which one of its teams placed in the top eight of 200 teams from 100 law schools. The team consisted of (from l. to r.) Kevin W. Whiteheart, Sharon A. Woodard, and Gene B. Johnson (front row) and was coached by Professors Robert A. Jenkins and Thomas P. Anderson (second row).

Sincerely,

Gregory A. Stakias
President, SBA

Description of Campbell’s Curriculum

Campbell University School of Law has what is believed by many legal educators to be the most structured curriculum of any law school in the nation. Campbell students are allowed sufficient electives to provide special emphases in their education, but a majority of the total hours of study consists of required courses designed to impart the knowledge and skills necessary to form an appropriate foundation for the competent and successful practitioner. In addition to traditionally required courses, Campbell requires courses in Taxation, Jurisprudence, Administrative Law, and Corporations. Several other features of Campbell’s program are rare, if not unique, and are more fully described below.

Campbell’s Award Winning Trial and Appellate Advocacy Program

Campbell’s Trial and Appellate Advocacy Program is the most extensive in the nation in terms of both coverage and student involvement. It consists of three semesters of required courses (the highest number of required trial and appellate advocacy semester hours in the nation) that build on a broad base of knowledge derived from other required courses such as Criminal Procedure, Evidence, Civil Procedure, and Appellate Advocacy. It is designed to prepare students in the basic skills and procedure necessary for a practice involving litigation. While we recognize that not all of our students intend to become trial lawyers, we believe that skills training in advocacy will better equip our graduates in whatever setting they may ultimately find themselves. We recognize that much of what a lawyer does—in or out of the courtroom—involves advocacy in one form or another. Advocacy and other skills courses required at Campbell not only expose all students to the reality of the adversarial process they will eventually encounter, but also equip them to participate effectively in it.

Campbell uses the learning by doing approach in training the students, first employed by the National Institute for Trial Advocacy. By using simulated training exercises and simulating the trials of actual cases, we are able to involve our students in a wider variation of substantive cases than would otherwise be available with a more typical clinical program. Simulation also allows for much closer evaluation and critiquing.

Because we are one of the smallest ABA-accredited law schools in the country, we are able to offer our students a great deal of individual instruction and feedback in the Program, as well as classroom instruction. Videotaping is an integral part of the Program; all student performances, whether in weekly performance sessions, or in ten-hour trials, are videotaped for self evaluation and critiquing with instructors and classmates.

Students will have performed numerous lawyering skills from every aspect of a trial by the completion of the Program. In weekly performance sessions the students conduct direct and cross examinations (including examinations of expert witnesses), opening statements, closing arguments, introduction of evidence, making and meeting objections and jury selection. In addition, every student tries a criminal felony trial and a complex civil case. In the civil pre-trial proceedings the students prepare pleadings, motions, discovery, jury instructions, trial briefs, a pre-trial order and a trial notebook. In the trials the students perform all of the above-described skills as well as make offers of proof, motions for directed verdict and conduct jury instruction conferences. Post trial motions with memorandum are filed in all civil cases.

By the completion of the Program every student will have tried at least one civil and one criminal jury trial and prepared briefs for and argued one appeal. The students prepare the appellate record for the civil case that they have tried and prepare appellate briefs and give oral arguments on the issues that they preserve in the civil trial.

Campbell's Program is nationally recognized. The American College of Trial Lawyers has awarded Campbell University School of Law its prestigious Emil Gumpert Award for excellence in teaching trial advocacy. Campbell is the only North Carolina law school that competes in the two national trial competitions. In 1988, one trial team from Campbell finished in the final eight at the National Trial Competition held in Dallas, Texas after winning the Regional Competition. Two hundred teams from 100 law schools competed in the competition. (Campbell has been a Regional Champion in the National Trial Competition two of the last three years.) Another 1988 Campbell team was first runner-up in the Regional Competition of the ATLA Trial Competition in Chicago, Illinois.

Legal Economics and Law Office Management

This course is the only required course of its kind in the United States; it is designed to acquaint students with the business aspects of delivering legal services. The subject-matter of this course includes small business management theory and procedures, technology in the law office (including an emphasis on harnessing computer technology), development of administrative and substantive systems, equipping and staffing, and client interviewing and counselling techniques. Required coursework includes time-keeping assignments and bill drafting.
Legal Research and Writing

Campbell requires legal research and writing courses in both semesters of the first year and emphasizes research and writing in each year of study. As part of the first year requirement, each student writes an appellate brief and engages in oral argument before a panel of judges composed of state and federal judges and attorneys experienced in appellate advocacy who critique the student's performance, in addition to the instructor. Before graduation, every Campbell student must complete a demanding writing requirement under faculty supervision. Every Campbell student receives individual instruction and is certified in the two major forms of computer-assisted legal research, WESTLAW and LEXIS, during the first year of study.

Planning and Organization Theory

Because lawyers are concerned with the maximization of opportunities, the elimination of problems, and the making and implementation of policy, Campbell's curriculum encompasses planning and organization theory and its application. Students are exposed to the theory in their first year of study and are required to meet a planning course requirement before graduation. This requirement is an example of Campbell's commitment to provide a curriculum that allows the practical and concrete to be taught in conjunction with the theoretical. Students are allowed to select one of several courses offered in particular subject areas to satisfy the Planning Requirement, such as Contract Planning, Estate Planning, Family Law Planning, Law Firm Planning, Real Property Planning, or Business Planning. Each of these courses is designed to require a student to examine major problems raised in the particular subject area (including taxation problems), to consider how and to what extent the attorney can anticipate and avoid those problems by more careful planning, and to require the students to draft appropriate documents to deal with some of the major problems in specific factual contexts.

Student Publications

Campbell Law Review. The Campbell Law Review is a professional journal published by a staff of approximately 50 students. Invitations of membership are extended to the top fifteen students in the second and third year classes and to students in the top third of the second and third year classes who demonstrate outstanding writing and academic ability in the Writing Competition. Invitations of candidate membership are extended to the top five students in the first year class. Participation on the law review staff provides these students the opportunity to develop their writing and research skills beyond the level provided by the required curriculum.

Campbell Law Observer (CLO). The Campbell Law Observer is the nation's only student-edited newspaper for the legal profession. Its circulation includes 10,000 North Carolina lawyers, law schools and other individuals and institutions across the nation. The CLO provides information concerning new trends in the law, information of interest to the bar, and student-written synopses of slip opinions published by federal and North Carolina courts. It provides its staff of approximately 60 students the opportunity to improve their analytical and writing skills while providing a service to the bar.

Student Activities

Moot Court Program. Participation in the Moot Court Program allows students to further develop their appellate advocacy and persuasive writing skills beyond the level achieved through satisfaction of required courses. Almost one-third of the second and third year students in any given year participate in Campbell's Moot Court Program. The Moot Court Board, composed of ten students elected by the members of the Moot Court Association, administers the annual Intramural Moot Court Competition. Every student who participates in the intramural competition is a member of the Moot Court Association. Selection for student participation in interschool competitions is based on performance in the intramural competition.

The 1987-88 academic year was a successful one for Campbell's competitive teams. Campbell was ranked fifth out of 32 schools in the Benton Moot Court Competition. The National Team and one of Campbell's ABA teams advanced to the regional quarterfinals; the other ABA Competition team advanced to the regional semifinals. Campbell also competes in the Wagner and Craven Moot Court Competitions.

Christian Legal Society (CLS). The CLS provides a means of sharing concerns about and examining the relationship between legal education, the law, and values inherent in them and the Christian faith and its expression.

Client Counselling Association. The Client Counselling Association organizes and administers the Intramural Client Counselling Competition, thereby helping students to develop that essential interpersonal skill necessary to the practice of law. Winners of the Intramural Competition compete in the ABA Regional Client Counselling Competition.

Federalist Society. This society is an organization dedicated to the preservation of a conservative philosophy.

Honor Court. Each year, seven students are elected by the student body to serve as justices on the Honor Court which administers the School of Law Honor Code. It is a branch of the Student Bar Association, and hears cases based on alleged infractions of the Honor Code presented by the Attorney General.

International Law Society. The society sponsors programs that educate the Law School and University community on current issues in international law and informs students of career opportunities available in the field of international law.

Intramurals. The Student Bar Association maintains an active intramural program, running its own basketball league.
and coordinating participation in University leagues in other sports. It also sponsors golf tournaments on the campus at Keith Hills Country Club.

Law Students Civil Rights Research Council (LSCRRC). LSCRRC promotes involvement in and greater awareness of civil rights issues. The group sponsors the annual John J. Broderick Civil Rights Symposium which has attracted speakers of national prominence on civil rights issues.

Legal Fraternities. Delta Theta Phi and Phi Alpha Delta, coed national legal fraternities, both have chapters at Campbell. They sponsor service and professional projects, as well as social functions.

Legislative Council. The Council is the rule making branch of the Student Bar Association and consists of eighteen members elected by the student body. It allocates student activities funds to all law student organizations.

Student Bar Association (SBA). The SBA serves as a liaison between students and the law school’s faculty and administration and coordinates student participation in law school activities. All students are members of the SBA and it functions as both a student government body and a professional bar association. The SBA publishes a student newsletter, and it sponsors the annual Law Day Awards Banquet and the annual Barristers’ Ball, as well as other educational and social functions.

Student Chapters of Professional Bar Associations. The Law Students’ Division of the American Bar Association (LSD/ABA), the North Carolina Bar Association (NCBA), and the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers (NCATL) have chapters at Campbell. They sponsor educational and social functions.

Women In Law (WIL). Women In Law is an organization that promotes awareness of legal and social issues (including those facing women today); provides support for fellow law students; and sponsors professional, service, and social functions. The proceeds of the Women In Law Annual Auction are used to fund several scholarships for law students. The group also administers the Law School Applicant Tour Program, and sponsors educational seminars, an annual reception for first year students, a big sister program and an annual Thanksgiving food collection for local churches.

Honors and Awards

Academic Honors List. Students whose weighted academic averages for a particular semester have placed them in the upper ten percent of their respective classes are named to the "Academic Honors List."

American Jurisprudence Book Awards. These awards are given by Lawyers Co-operative-Bancroft-Whitney, publishers, to the students who make the highest grades in selected courses.

Campbell Scholars. Each year Campbell offers several full tuition scholarships which are designated as Campbell Law Scholarships. Campbell Law Scholars are selected on the basis of the students’ academic records, performances on the LSAT, characters, motivations and potentials for meaningful contributions to the legal profession and law school programs. The scholarships are awarded without respect to need.

Corpus Juris Secundum Awards. Each year the faculty selects one student from each of the first, second and third years who has made the most significant contribution toward overall legal scholarship in his or her respective class.

I. Beverly Lake Award For Excellence In Constitutional Law. A few Lake Awards are bestowed annually on students who demonstrate exemplary achievement in the field of constitutional law. This award was established in honor of the former North Carolina Supreme Court Justice and his family.

Omicron Delta Kappa. ODK is a national leadership honor society which recognizes and encourages superior scholarship and leadership by men and women of exemplary character. ODK places emphasis on the development of the whole person, as a present member of the college community and as a prospective contributor to a better society.

Teaching Assistantships. Each year, a few second and third year students are selected to be teaching assistants in the Legal Research and Writing Program, based on their academic abilities, characters, and performances as students in that Program.

West Publishing Company Hornbook Award. This award is given by West Publishing Company to the first, second and third year students who have achieved the highest scholastic averages in their respective classes.

Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities. Each year the law school faculty selects a few students to be named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Selections are made on the basis of outstanding contributions to the School of Law in academic, co-curricular, and service achievements.

Women In Law Scholarships. Recipients are selected by the Women in Law organization on the basis of service to the community and the School of Law, academic performance, and achievement in law school activities.
